

Eligibility Requirements Outlined for Veterans

If you plan on a veteran's loan or on using veteran's educational assistance, be sure to establish your eligibility well ahead of time.

This piece of advice was handed out this week by Veterans' Service Officer Sara R. Bridges, who said veterans must have a Cal-Vet Certificate of Eligibility to show their right to apply for a loan or educational assistance. Once the eligibility is established, said Mrs. Bridges, all handling of future applications will be greatly expedited.

THOSE ELIGIBLE under the Cal-Vet program are veterans who are natives of California or who entered active duty in the armed forces from this state in time of armed conflict.

In order to establish eligibility, then, the veteran must submit a copy of form DVA-1, "Application for Certificate of Eligibility: Cal-Vet Farm and Home Purchase — Veterans Educational Assistance." This can be obtained from the Veterans' Service Office or any office of the California Department of Veterans Affairs.

WHEN HE submits the application, the veteran must also submit a large, clear photographic copy of his discharge, or some other official documents that show the date and place of his entry into the active service along with the character and date of separation. If he served for more than one period, he must enclose documents showing all dates and places of enlistment and discharge; and if he is still in the service he must submit a Statement of Service from his personnel officer. All should be mailed to the Department of Veterans Affairs, P.O. Box 1559, Sacramento.

Once the eligibility is approved, the veteran gets a blue Certificate of Eligibility signed by the Director of Veterans Affairs and which the veteran himself should sign. This he should retain until he is ready to proceed with his loan, when he will be asked to surrender it.

Scouts Take Canoe Trip

Four days and three nights were spent on the Colorado River recently by the Southwest Canoe Assn.

The trip extended from Blythe to Yuma, about 90 miles of river boating, according to Jack Till, advisor for Explorer Post 753X, Col. John D. Craig of the television program "Search for Adventure" accompanied the group of 43 persons.

SCOUT UNITS on the trip were all from the South Bay area. First timers on the trip were made honorary members of the Honored Society of "River Rats" Cum Laud, Till said.

Among those present were Client Degen of Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Johnson and daughter, Leander, and Ed Brady, assistant district commissioner of Boy Scouts of the Harbor District.

THE GIRL SCOUT Mariner groups and their leaders are as follows: Claire Frederick of the Noah's Ark, Marian Wilson of the Petes, Skipper Esther Cook and First Mate Leona Artis of the Sea Maids, The Boy Scouts Explorer Aquatic Post 753X was under the direction of Ed Brady.

TV CANDIDS by Terrence O'Flaherty

Emile Griffith, the welterweight fighter who gave Benny (Kid) Paret the beating that caused his death, should be given an Emmy for The Outstanding Television Performer of the Year. This should be engraved on his trophy:

"He Gave Them What They Came to See."

Why pretend? Basically, the kill is what most fight fans seek. For years on television they've had to settle for something short of the real thing. Griffith delivered.

It is suitable that television brought this coup into the living rooms of America already spattered with the blood of uncensored video deaths from Tombstone, Ariz., to the Sunset Strip. I wonder who will sponsor the summer rerun? It would get an enormous audience.

Fear of public opinion in the Paret case caused Red Skelton to cancel a sketch with his punchdrunk fighter Cauliflower McPugg. ABC's "Target, the Corrupters" canceled a drama about a boxer killed in the ring.

Then G.E. Theater was ready to roll a taped drama called "The Roman Kid," based on a boxing story by Paul Gallico. Although no one was hurt in the drama, CBS canceled immediately. The producers of the unreleased film "Requiem for a Heavyweight"—based on Rod Serling's television classic—are worried about the effect of Paret's death on the box office, despite a fine cast starring Jackie Gleason, Anthony Quinn and Mickey Rooney.

But these gestures are temporary where money is involved. Skelton has rescheduled the Cauliflower McPugg sequence for his last show of the season, June 26. ABC has renewed its TV fight programs for next year. And "Requiem for a Heavyweight" won't be released until October.

Everyone will have forgotten about Kid Paret by then. Except Emile Griffith.

The hottest star in Hollywood is neither Elizabeth Taylor nor Marlon Brando. It's Vincent Edwards, the handsome, hairy actor who plays the sexy surgeon, "Dr. Casey," one of the current season's biggest hits (Mondays at 10 p.m. on ABC). After an overdose of delicate actors with long eyelashes, the women viewers have apparently welcomed he-man Edwards into their homes with great enthusiasm.

Edwards' real name is Vincent Edwards Zoino and he's the youngest (30) of seven children born in Brooklyn. He won a scholarship to Ohio State as a swimmer (backstroke) and competed in the national intercollegiate meets. He quit college at 19 to go to the American College of Dramatic Art in New York and eventually got a Hollywood contract with Hal Wallis.

One of his first parts was the title role in a 1951 movie called "Mr. Universe," which starred Jack Carson and Janis Paige. He had a shock of blond hair and rippled his muscles, according to my spies. It is a role not mentioned in current publicity stories, but apparently it didn't warp his libido. He has been a welcome addition to the 1962 TV season and I really don't care if he can cut out appendices or not.
